What's Fair About Fair Use & Copyright?

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1 – 4 PM,
Central Library Auditorium

How Fair Use and Copyright law affect documentary filmmaking and online video creators.

Art Neill of New Media Rights will offer a workshop on how Copyright law both restricts and empowers documentary filmmakers and other video creators. He will cover key legal issues in filmmaking, including:

- The basics of copyright law, including how it protects your work, and how it restricts what you can do with others' work
- How to reuse video footage and images under fair use (Fair Use permits use of copyrighted works without permission under specific circumstances)
- When and how to get a license for music, footage, and other materials
- How to properly use openly licensed (Creative Commons) materials

Hosted by Doculink, an online all-volunteer, grassroots network of over 3000 documentary filmmakers around the world.
